GLAZED & DIFFUSED June 20–August 16, 2015

North Adams, Mass. -- Glazed & Diffused will be on view at Ferrin Contemporary's gallery space at 1315 MASS MoCA Way in North Adams from June 20 through August 16, 2015. This survey exhibition will focus on a select group of international artists chosen for their use of fired clay and glaze pigment to convey abstract content. Their sculpture, objects, vessels, tile, and site-specific installations reveal intended results using fluidity, abstraction, and color theory.

Exhibiting artists will be Raymon Elozua, Peter Christian Johnson, Jun Kaneko, Jae Yong Kim, Steven Young Lee, Lauren Mabry, Sara Moorhouse, Ron Nagle, George Ohr, Peter Pincus, Robert Silverman, Linda Sormin, Toshiko Takaezu, Beatrice Wood, and Betty Woodman.

"Recently, we have witnessed the emergence of abstract clay sculpture as a fine art trend that has become fully integrated into the contemporary art market. Today, artists are regularly creating and exhibiting objects and sculpture in clay at art galleries and museums. These institutions are mounting solo and group exhibitions that feature ceramic art or integrate it into exhibitions alongside paintings and other artwork," said curator and director, Leslie Ferrin. "Our goal in this exhibit is to reveal some highlights of clay's journey from the beginning of its abstraction to today."

Glazed & Diffused brings forward a group of emerging, mid-career, and master artists who identify and use clay as their primary material. These artists apply glaze to ceramic form with broad knowledge, experience, and intent. By grounding this show in history starting with George Ohr, who declared himself to be the "World's Greatest Artist" in the late 1800s, and identifying other abstractionists since that time who have used glaze color as their “paint” and clay as their “canvas,” we present a continuum that leads us to the present day and possibly the masters of the next generation.

Spanning eight weeks, Glazed & Diffused will bring attention to the lively dialogue surrounding the importance of abstract ceramic art and the dissolution of categorical constraints in institutions and the art market through additional programming presented by Ferrin Contemporary that will include panel discussions, DISH + DINE events, tours, and artist salons.
